1. Product Description

A Call Warrant enables investors to participate more than proportionately (with leverage) in the positive development of the Underlying. Conversely, investors also participate more than proportionately in the negative development of the Underlying and additionally bear the risk of losing their entire investment if the Underlying is equal to or below the Strike at maturity. On the Settlement Date, investors receive the product of the Multiplier and the amount by which the Final Reference Level exceeds the Strike. Such amount cannot be negative.

Call Warrants not exercised on the last occurring Exercise Date expire worthless.

2. Prospects of Profits and Loss

Market expectation

Investors in a Call Warrant expect that the price of the Underlying will rise and do not expect the Reference Currency to depreciate against the Settlement Currency.

Profit Potential

A Call Warrant benefits more than proportionately from a positive performance of the Underlying. The profit potential for a

Call Warrant is unlimited. The value of a Call Warrant will be affected both by the performance of the Underlying and by the performance of the exchange rate between the Reference Currency and the Settlement Currency. An appreciation of the Reference Currency against the Settlement Currency has a positive effect on the value of the Call Warrant.

Loss potential

A Call Warrant loses value if the Underlying shows a negative performance or if the Reference Currency depreciates against the Settlement Currency. Investors may lose some of their invested capital if the Cash Amount is less than the purchase price of the Call Warrant paid by the investor. Investors may also lose all of their invested capital if the Final Reference Level is equal to or below the Strike.

Market price determining factors during the term

In particular, following factors may have a negative effect on the price of the Call Warrant if considered individually: a falling Underlying price falling volatility of the Underlying, a falling interest rate level, higher dividends or higher dividend expectations. Conversely, these factors may have a positive impact on the price of the Call Warrant. Certain market factors may mutually reinforce or cancel each other.

3. Significant Risks for the Investors

Product specific risks

Due to the leverage effect, the value of the Warrant will fluctuate more than the value of the Underlying. An investment in a Warrant therefore bears a higher risk than a direct investment in the Underlying. Investors in this Warrant should be experienced investors being familiar with derivative products, leverage, the exchange rate and the Underlying.

Investors may lose their capital partially or in full, if the Warrant has to be redeemed early due to reasons beyond the control of the Issuer.

Market risks

An investment in the Warrant involves risks. These risks may include, among others, equity market, bond market, foreign exchange, interest rate, market volatility and economic, political and regulatory risks and any combination of these and other risks.

An investment in the Warrant should only be made after assessing the direction, timing and magnitude of potential future changes in the value of the Underlying, and/or in the composition or method of calculation of the Underlying, as the return of any such investment will be dependent, inter alia, upon such changes. More than one risk factor may have simultaneous effect with regard to the Warrant such that the effect of a particular risk factor may not be predictable. In addition, more than one risk factor may have a compounding effect which may not be predictable. No assurance can be given as to the effect that any combination of risk factors may have on the value of the Warrant.

Secondary market risks

Under normal market conditions, Deutsche Bank AG intends but is not obliged to maintain a secondary market on a regular basis throughout the life of the Warrant. There is no obligation to provide bid and/or ask prices for a specific order or volume and there is no guarantee of a specific liquidity or of a specific market making spread. In extraordinary market situations or in the case of technical disruptions, it may be temporarily difficult or impossible to buy or sell the Warrant. Hence investors cannot rely on being able to purchase or sell the Warrant on a specific date or at a specific price.

Deutsche Bank AG may provide a secondary market and bid and ask prices for the Warrant taking into account prevailing market conditions. There will be a price difference between bid and ask prices (i.e. the spread). The bid and ask prices quoted by the Issuer during its term are based on the Issuer's internal pricing models. Accordingly, unlike in an on exchange trading, for example for shares, the prices quoted during the term are not based on supply and demand. The prices in particular contain a margin which the Issuer determines at its free discretion and which may cover, in addition to the Issuer's proceeds, the structuring costs of the Warrant, any applicable sales costs and other costs. It is not possible to predict the price at which the Warrant will trade in the market.

Issuer risk

The value of the Warrant may depend not only on the performance of the Underlying, but also on the creditworthiness of the Issuer, which may change during the lifetime of the Warrant. The investor is exposed to the risk that the Issuer is unable to meet its obligations under the Warrant, for instance in the event of bankruptcy (inability to pay / over-indebtedness) or an official directive for resolution action. Such a directive may be issued if, for example, the Issuer's assets fall below the amount of its liabilities, the Issuer cannot, at present or in the near future, pay off its liabilities at maturity or requires extraordinary financial support, and may, among other things, result in a write-down or write-off of the claims arising from the Warrant or in conversion of the Warrant into shares of the Issuer. A total loss of the invested amount is possible. The Warrant is a debt security and as such not subject to any deposit protection.

Risk of termination and cancellation / Reinvestment risk

The Issuer may terminate the Warrant with immediate effect in the event of obvious written or mathematical errors in the Terms of the Warrant or if certain extraordinary events provided in the Terms of the Warrant occur. Extraordinary events are:

- changes, particularly in connection with the Underlying, which have a material effect on the objective ability or method of determination of the price or level of the Underlying or its theoretical economic value; these include in particular ceasing to calculate the Underlying and
- events, in particular due to changes in actual, economic, legal and tax conditions, which:
 - affect the Issuer's Hedging Arrangements and hinder it in meeting its obligations in connection with the Warrant;
 - cause a substantial adverse change for the Issuer in the basis of the calculation of the issue price of the Warrant.

Instead of immediate termination, the Issuer may also amend the terms and conditions. In case of immediate termination, investors receive payment of an amount equivalent to the market price to be determined by the Issuer at this time. This may also be significantly lower than the purchase price paid by the investor. The investor is exposed to the risk that the Warrant may be terminated at a time that is unfavorable for him and that he will be able to reinvest the amount received only on less favorable terms.

Ranking

The ranking of the Issuer's liabilities in insolvency or in the event of the imposition of resolution measures, such as a bail-in, is determined by German law. The Securities are unsecured unsubordinated preferred liabilities that would rank higher than the Issuer's regulatory capital, its subordinated liabilities and its unsecured unsubordinated non-preferred liabilities. The liabilities under the Securities rank pari passu with other unsecured unsubordinated preferred liabilities, including but not limited to derivatives, structured products and deposits not subject to protection. The liabilities under the Securities rank below liabilities protected in bankruptcy or excluded from resolution measures, such as certain protected deposits.
