1. Product Description

A Call Warrant enables investors to participate more than proportionately (with leverage) in the positive development of the Underlying. Conversely, investors also participate more than proportionately in the negative development of the Underlying and additionally bear the risk of losing their entire investment if the Underlying is equal to or below the Strike at maturity. On the Settlement Date, investors receive the product of the Multiplier and the amount by which the Final Reference Level exceeds the Strike. Such amount cannot be negative.

The above is a non-binding summary of the main tax consequences applicable to private investors resident in Switzerland and does not take special circumstances of investors into consideration. Tax laws and the tax authorities' practice may change, possibly with retroactive effect. Investors should consult their own tax advisor. Deutsche Bank AG expressly excludes all liability in respect of any tax implications.

2. Prospects of Profits and Loss

Market expectation

Investors in a Call Warrant expect that the level of the Underlying will rise and do not expect the Reference Currency to depreciate against the Settlement Currency.

Profit Potential

A Call Warrant benefits more than proportionately from a positive performance of the Underlying. The profit potential for a Call Warrant is unlimited. The value of a Call Warrant will be affected both by the performance of the Underlying and by the performance of the exchange rate between the Reference Currency and the Settlement Currency. An appreciation of the Reference Currency against the Settlement Currency has a positive effect on the value of the Call Warrant.

Loss potential

A Call Warrant loses value if the Underlying shows a negative performance or if the Reference Currency depreciates against the Settlement Currency. Investors may lose some of their invested capital if the Cash Amount is less than the purchase price of the Call Warrant paid by the investor. Investors may also lose all of their invested capital if the Final Reference Level is equal to or below the Strike.

Market price determining factors during the term

In particular, following factors may have a negative effect on the price of the Call Warrant if considered individually: a falling Underlying level falling volatility of the Underlying, a falling interest rate level. Conversely, these factors may have a positive impact on the price of the Call Warrant. Certain market factors may mutually reinforce or cancel each other.

3. Significant Risks for the Investors

Product specific risks

Due to the leverage effect, the value of the Warrant will fluctuate more than the value of the Underlying. An investment in a Warrant therefore bears a higher risk than a direct investment in the Underlying. Investors in this Warrant should be experienced investors being familiar with derivative products, leverage, the exchange rate and the Underlying.

Investors may lose their capital partially or in full, if the Warrant has to be redeemed early due to reasons beyond the control of the Issuer.

Market risks

An investment in the Warrant involves risks. These risks may include, among others, equity market, bond market, foreign exchange, interest rate, market volatility and economic, political and regulatory risks and any combination of these and other risks.

An investment in the Warrant should only be made after assessing the direction, timing and magnitude of potential future changes in the value of the Underlying, and/or in the composition or method of calculation of the Underlying, as the return of any such investment will be dependent, inter alia, upon such changes. More than one risk factor may have simultaneous effect with regard to the Warrant such that the effect of a particular risk factor may not be predictable. In addition, more than one risk factor may have a compounding effect which may not be predictable. No assurance can be given as to the effect that any combination of risk factors may have on the value of the Warrant.

Secondary market risks

Under normal market conditions, Deutsche Bank AG intends but is not obliged to maintain a secondary market on a regular basis throughout the life of the Warrant. There is no obligation to provide bid and/or ask prices for a specific order or volume and there is no guarantee of a specific liquidity or of a specific market making spread. In extraordinary market situations or in the case of technical disruptions, it may be temporarily difficult or impossible to buy or sell the Warrant. Hence investors cannot rely on being able to purchase or sell the Warrant on a specific date or at a specific price.

Deutsche Bank AG may provide a secondary market and bid and ask prices for the Warrant taking into account prevailing market conditions. There will be a price difference between bid and ask prices (i.e. the spread). The bid and ask prices quoted by the Issuer during its term are based on the Issuer's internal pricing models. Accordingly, unlike in an on exchange trading, for example for shares, the prices quoted during the term are not based on supply and demand. The prices in particular contain a margin which the Issuer determines at its free discretion and which may cover, in addition to the Issuer's proceeds, the structuring costs of the Warrant, any applicable sales costs and other costs. It is not possible to predict the price at which the Warrant will trade in the market.

Issuer risk

The value of the Warrant may depend not only on the performance of the Underlying, but also on the creditworthiness of the Issuer, which may change during the lifetime of the Warrant. The investor is exposed to the risk of default of the Issuer. If the Issuer fails to make a payment or becomes insolvent, investors could lose some or all of their investment. The Issuer Ratings indicated in this document reflect the situation at the time of issuance and may change. The actual Issuer Ratings at any given time can be found on the Issuer's website (www.db.com) under "Investor Relations/Ratings".
